Abstract. Carl Georg Ludwig Pfeiffer (1805–1877) was one of the most productive authors on (mainly non-marine) molluscs during the mid-19th century, describing an estimated 3,000 taxa. As a first step in making his legacy accessible, we present a bibliography of his malacological publications (452 items in total). His serial books and journal publications are listed separately, and we present a collation of the Malakozoologische Blätter and Malakozoologische Blätter: Neue Folge.

Key words. Mollusca, Gastropoda, books, collation, journals, publication dates, serials.

Introduction

Carl Georg Ludwig Pfeiffer (born 4th July 1805 in Kassel; died 2nd October 1877 in Kassel) was a significant personality in the field of terrestrial malacology in the 19th century. A physician by profession, he quickly developed a passion for natural history, and then started his career as an exceptionally gifted botanist working with Cactaceae (for his contributions in botany, see STAFLEU & COWAN 1983). During a visit to Cuba in 1839, he began his lifelong interest in land snails. His collection must have been enormous since he was in contact with all the major contemporary malacologists and shell dealers. After his death, the collection was acquired by Heinrich Dohrn in Stettin, where it probably was destroyed at the end of World War II (ZILCH 1967). Fortunately, parts of his collection survived as exchange specimens in the collections of other malacologists. He devoted a major part of his studies to the description of new species from the collection of Hugh Cuming, of which most of the type specimens are still housed in the Natural History Museum in London.

There is confusion about Pfeiffer's date of birth. For example, COAN & KABAT (2020: 1197) stated "birth date erroneously given as 1805 and 1815 by some sources" and gave his date of birth as 4th July 1804. This is the date mentioned by WHEELER (1949: 48, 49), which was likely copied by ZILCH (1967: 39). However, in various sources, such as the Hessische Biografie (<https://www.lagis-hessen.de/pnd/10053595X>) and the Allgemeine Deutsche Biographie by WUNSCHMANN (1887: 643–646), 1805 is given. It was also stated by WHEELER (1949: 49) that Pfeiffer received his "degree of M.D. on his twentieth birthday, July 4, 1825". If this is correct, he was born in 1805. KOBELT (1877) mentioned that Pfeiffer died at the age of 73, which can only be the case if he was born in 1804. Internet sources, such as Wikipedia, almost invariably give 1805. JUNGBLUTH (1995: 7) mentioned Pfeiffer's year of birth in a heading as 1804, but in the text on the same page 1805 is given. We have adopted 1805 as Pfeiffer's date of birth, but confirmation is still needed.

There is also confusion about the spelling and sequence of the Christian names given to Pfeiffer when he was baptized. He signed himself almost invariably as Louis, but sometimes also as Ludwig (in his Latin books the name is latinised as Ludovico). As Christian names we came across: Carl Georg Ludwig, Karl Georg Ludwig, Ludwig Georg Karl, Ludwig Georg Carl, and Ludwig Karl Georg. We have used in the title of our paper “Carl Georg Ludwig”, as this name appeared in his obituary in the Hessische Morgenzeitung (hence quite possibly authentic—STAFLEU & COWAN 1983).

Louis Pfeiffer can be considered as one of the most influential malacologists who studied terrestrial molluscs at that time. It was stated by JUNGBLUTH (1995: 7) that he was “der herausragendste Conchyliologe des 19. Jhs.” [= the most outstanding conchologist of the 19th century]. TRYON (1866: 173–174) stated the following: “Within the past few years, no other department of Malacological science has progressed so rapidly as the Terrestrial Mollusca. A host of enterprising collectors and naturalists have confined their attention to these shells alone, and have pursued the study with unequalled success. We look in vain through the literature of Marine Conchology for the same critical acumen and thorough knowledge of the subject.... We believe that the entire credit of originating and promoting Terrestrial Malacology as a separate study, should be awarded to Dr. Louis Pfeiffer, who has unceasingly worked for many years in publishing a complete Bibliography of the species...”. It should be noted that Pfeiffer not only studied terrestrial pulmonates, but also terrestrial prosobranchs. In addition, he was interested in the Veneridae, a marine bivalve family.

Although much has been written on Louis Pfeiffer, only a single portrait is known (Figure 1), which was published in, for instance, Band 25, Heft 1 of the Malakozoologische Blätter (1878), Band 1 of the Monatsschrift für Kakteenkunde (1892: opposite p. 135), volume 8 of the Cactus Journal (1939: 41), as well as on numerous internet sites. Until now, a thorough compilation of his malacological works has been lacking. A catalogue of species described by him is also lacking. One reason for this omission is surely the somewhat confused publication history, with many of his journals and books having unclear publication dates, and the often-encountered case that he introduced the same new names in parallel across several papers and books. This makes it exceedingly difficult to sort out the correct (i.e. the earliest) valid description of a particular name.

Pfeiffer was one of the first people to use a “database” in the field of malacology: series like the Monographia Heliceorum viventium and similar books were intended to permanently update the scientific progress of the time, and to publish every name that he came across. For this reason he often mentioned a nomen museorum or a manuscript name in the synonymy of his compiled species lists. Under the current International Code of Zoological Nomenclature (ICZN 1999, Article 11.6.1), such names are made available, with Pfeiffer as author, if they had subsequently been adopted as the valid name of a taxon. Furthermore, following contemporary conventions, in his new descriptions Pfeiffer occasionally attributed the name of a taxon to the person who provided the name on the label. Again, according to the Code (ICZN 1999), Pfeiffer should be its author, a rule that was already in effect with the 1905 version of the Code (ICZN 1905).

Working as editors for the database project Molluscabase (<http://www.molluscabase.org/>), 2 of the authors have been continually confronted with the problem of the lack of a malacological bibliography for Pfeiffer, unclear publication dates of his taxa, and the unknown whereabouts of his type specimens. How best to approach such a mountain of work? The fundamental answer is a thoroughly analysed publication list, which can then be utilised to produce a species catalogue. We estimate that Pfeiffer may have introduced well over 3,000 malacological names. The next step in this Pfeiffer project will be a compilation of the names he described in the Proceedings of the Zoological Society of London.

Sources and Treatment

Pfeiffer’s publications and taxa have been traced using the online, searchable versions of SHERBORN (1922–1933), NEAVE (1939–1940), RUHOFF (1980), the Catalogue of Scientific Papers (ANONYMOUS 1870), BÜRK & JUNGBLUTH (1985), and the Zoological Record. In addition, all journals edited by Pfeiffer have been checked page by page. We followed the recommendations of DUNCAN (1937) for the publication dates of the Proceedings of the Zoological Society of London, KABAT & COAN (2016) for the Zeitschrift für Malakozoologie, WINCKWORTH (1936) and FISCHER-PIETTE (1937) for the Journal de Conchylogie, and JOHNSON (1969) for the Novitates Conchologicae. The journal Malakozoologische Blätter, which followed on from Zeitschrift für Malakozoologie, printed the publication date of the Heft (= part or issue) on the sheets, but only until 1872. However, there are some deviations; a full collation of volumes 1–25 is given in Appendix 1. The publication dates of the parts of the Systematisches Conchylien-Cabinet von Martini und Chemnitz were taken from WELTER-SCHULTES (1999).

In cases where a more precise date than the year alone is known, this information has been added between square brackets after the publication year, or, in case a publication was published in parts, between square brackets in combination with the respective part. The information presented between square brackets deals with the date of publication as is currently known. We stress that the date of publication according to Articles 21.3, 21.3.1 and 21.3.2 of the Code (ICZN 1999) is an artificial date that is used as a quasi-legal instrument to determine—when needed—the priority of names, but need not match the actual publication date (i.e. the date it was distributed). For example, on the first part of the second volume of the Monographia Heliceorum viventium the date 1848 is printed on the title page. In the absence of any additional evidence, the publication date should be treated as 31 December 1848 according to Article 21.3.2. However, we found that this part was mentioned in the Literarische Zeitung from 29 June 1848. According to Article 21.3 “the earliest day on which the work is demonstrated to be in existence as a published work is to be adopted as the date of publication”, in this case 29 June 1848. Of course, the actual publication date cannot be 29 June, but is a date prior to 29 June [<29 June]. If the Literarische Zeitung had been dated only as June 1848, without a precise day, the date of publication according to Article 21.3.1 is “the last day of the month”, i.e. 30 June, but the actual publication date might have been any date in June or earlier [\leq June]. To omit confusion between the actual publication date and the date of publication according to the ICZN (that serves a technical purpose only), we have refrained from giving the latter date.

We first present Pfeiffer's books, which were published serially, giving the date of each separately issued component. We then list his publications in journals, presented in chronological order. Included in this list are his contributions to Philippi's Abbildungen und Beschreibungen neuer oder wenig gekannter Conchylien. Collations of the journals Malakozoologische Blätter and Malakozoologische Blätter: Neue Folge are given in Appendices 1 and 2, respectively. Dates within parentheses and inverted commas are printed dates on title pages that differ from the actual date of publication.

KABAT (1989) and many others listed Pfeiffer as the author of these 3 catalogues of taxa housed in the Natural History Museum (London). Only the third publication listed L. Pfeiffer as an author on its title page. The first 2 publications do not indicate any authors on the title page and have been attributed to Pfeiffer, to Gray, to Gray & Pfeiffer, or to Pfeiffer & Gray by subsequent authors. For a discussion on the authorship of these publications we refer to PETIT (2012: 25–26); we follow his opinion that both Gray and Pfeiffer should be the authors, but prefer the sequence Pfeiffer & Gray (not Gray & Pfeiffer), following what is stated in the selling catalogue bound at the end of the 1857 Auriculidae catalogue. For the publication dates of the 3 catalogues we refer to KABAT (1989).

Appendix 1

Collation of the Malakozoologische Blätter

The journal was printed on sheets (in German, “Bogen”), which were each folded into 16 pages. On each Bogen the journal abbreviation “Malak. Bl.” is followed by a

Roman numeral, given at the left side of the bottom of the first page, followed by a date. At the bottom right side of the first page of the Bogen an Arabic numeral is given. This Arabic numeral is the Bogen number. The Roman number generally indicates the contents of a Heft (= part or issue) from the Band (= volume). By convention, the Bogen that are bound together in the same wrapper are considered to make up a Heft. The wrappers of the Malakozoologische Blätter contain only pencilled information about the Bogen and plates included; no Heft number is mentioned, nor the date of publication. We have therefore given each Heft a number ourselves to facilitate its citation; this number may or may not coincide with the Roman number. For example, the Roman numbering of Band 1–4 ranges from I to XXIII, whereas we restart the Heft numbering with each new Band. The date as given on the Bogen after the Roman number is considered the publication date of the Heft. Sometimes, the Bogen within a Heft are dated differently; in such cases the date given in the last Bogen is considered as the publication date of the Heft (marked in Table 5 as “Date of Bogen xx”). In some cases we have evidence that the publication date given in the last Bogen is incorrect. For example, Band 2 Heft 3 (having the Roman number IX) contains the Bogen 5 (page 65–80, dated July 1855), 6 (page 81–96, dated August 1855) and 7 (page 97–112, dated August 1855). However, on page 112 the paper by A. Schmidt ends with “Aschersleben im September 1855”, therefore we date Heft 3 (containing pages 65–112) as ≥September 1855 (= actual publication date). In other cases, we have evidence that a change in Roman number printed does not reflect the end of the Heft. For example, for Band 6 the Bogen marked with Roman numbers IV and V, dated October and November respectively, were sent together (that is, bound in the same wrapper) and are therefore considered in our Table 5 as a single Heft, published in November.

As mentioned earlier, on the wrapper its content is pencilled (Bogen and plates), but no date is given. In general, we have followed the information printed on the Bogen; proven deviations regarding publication dates or the content of a Heft based on wrappers or secondary sources are shown in bold in Table 5 and are explained in the Remarks column. It should be stressed that wrappers are quite rare—we found only a few, one of which is shown in Figure 8. Wrappers that we have seen are marked with an * in Table 5.

In each Band there are also from 2 to 8 plates. Unfortunately, there is almost no information available in which Heft each plate was placed. Only in such cases where we do have the information are the plates mentioned in Table 5. A relatively rich source for wrappers of the Malakozoologische Blätter is the library of Richard I. Johnson, generously made accessible to us by Alan R. Kabat (Museum of Comparative Zoology, Harvard University). By doing so, several plates could be placed, and the contents of a Heft in terms of Bogen could be identified.

For Band 19 onwards, no information is presented on the Bogen. By using a variety of secondary sources, we were able to reconstruct the publication history of Bände 19, 20, 22, 23, 24 and 25; no precise information could be retrieved for Band 21.

Table 5. Collation of the Malakozoologische Blätter (Cassel; Theodor Fischer; Bände 1–18, 22–24 edited by L. Pfeiffer, Bände 19–21 edited by L. Pfeiffer & Wilhelm Kobelt, Band 25 edited by Stefan Clessin). The number of plates of each Band is added between {}; only in a few cases could the plates be allocated to a particular Heft; such cases are mentioned in the column “Plates”. An * means that the wrapper of the Heft was consulted. Dates are not mentioned on the wappers, but the wrappers contain information about the content, namely the Bogen and the plates. Deviations from the information printed on the Bogen are shown in bold and are briefly explained in the column “Remarks” (see also our explanations in the text).

Collation of the Malakozoologische Blätter: Neue Folge

This journal was a continuation of the Malakozoologische Blätter, but was edited by Stefan Clessin (13th November 1833 in Würzburg – 24th December 1912 in Regensburg) after the death of Pfeiffer in 1877. No information regarding the parts (= issues, Hefte) of the volume (= Band) and the publication dates are given on the sheets (= Bogen), and we could not trace any wrapper with a printed publication date. However, we were able to determine secondary information about the publication history of all volumes. The results are provided in Table 6. We have provided the publication date of the sources that were the earliest to mention each Heft, thus pinpointing more precisely in which period of the year the Heft was published. Alan R. Kabat found several wrappers in the set of the Museum of Comparative Zoology (Harvard University). In this set, which belonged to Alexander Agassiz, the date of receipt is given, hand-written by the MCZ librarian or clerk at the top of the page of the individual wrappers. This information is given in Table 6. Interestingly, even though it could have taken up to a month for the Heft to get from Cassel to Boston (via Hamburg, and a steam ship across the Atlantic), some of the dates of receipt are earlier than the dates of the reviews or notices in the German journals.

Table 6. Collation of the Malakozoologische Blätter: Neue Folge (Cassel; Theodor Fischer; edited by Stefan Clessin). In the column “Remarks” the date is given of the earliest sources that mention the existence of the Heft. An * means that the wrapper of the Heft was consulted.
